PARIS July 21 —La Liberte says the Government has decided to dissolve the Corps Legislatif should members oppose the closing of the session. It also says the Government has asked the Italian Government if they have to assist Italy if necessary, and received a reply that Prussia never intended to resort to such a method of warfare.

Evening. The rumors of Russia's intention of joining Prussia gain credence hourly.

Couriers left today with dispatches for the Cabinets of Austria and Italy. It is believed the Emperor demands the fulfillment by those powers of agreements already made to stand by France. The Government denies that the French troops have invaded Austria.

BERLIN July 21 —Two hundred French soldiers crossed the frontier on Tuesday on a reconnoissance and were made prisoners after a skirmish. None were killed and but few wounded. Artillery is going to the frontier.

It is finally stated that the demand of France gives Prussia no alternative but refusal. France demanded a pledge from the Government that no German should ever ascend the Spanish throne, and that one of the Hohenzollern Princes reside in Paris as a hostage or a heavy amount of money be deposited in France to be forfeited if the pledge should be broken or that the Rhinish provinces be given over to France keeping to be held until the death of the last Prince of Hohenzollern.

In the House of Commons tonight Gladstone said Russia and Austria had used every effort with Prussia and France to preserve peace. He was unable to state what Prussia might have expected from the withdrawal of Leopold. He had no knowledge of the existence of a secret treaty between France and Denmark. He had no doubt on the score of the neutrality of Holland, Belgium and Luxemburg.

LONDON July 22 —Later —The fact that Austrian orders have extended to the field in Hungary is accepted as proving the sincerity of her neutrality because it removes troops from the Russian border.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard says that Prim has been wounded in the leg by a pistol shot fired by a Republican.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 3 1870

German Unity The Action of France

The day during time between north political divisions known as North Germany and South Germany is the river Main This was settled by the treaty of Prague which was negotiated between Prussia Austria and a few of the smaller German States in August 1866 immediately after the defeat of Austria in that year by the Prussian armies By this treaty the supremacy of Prussia in North Germany was acknowledged But there were some secret articles introduced to ensure to the Benefit of Prussia and give her still greater ascendency in German affairs By these secret articles a treaty of alliance offensive and defensive, was concluded between Prussia on the one side and Bavaria, Wurtemberg and Baden on the other which latter States lie south of the river Main, that is, in South Germany These states contain an aggregate population of several millions and a treaty with them of this description is calculated to greatly augment the power of Prussia France asserts that these secret articles are a violation of the treaty of Prague, and puts this fact forth as one of the existing causes of the war She cannot permit Prussia to grow up into a power of such magnitude In the struggle now commencing, Baden, Wartemberg and Bavaria of course go with Prussia France considers this alliance a menace to her It is a step on the part of Prussia toward obtaining a commanding influence in South Germany which taken in connection with her position as head of the North German Confederation could not be otherwise than dangerous to France It unsettles the balance of power which the rulers of Europe for three centuries have been so careful to preserve An agreement to place the armies of Baden Wurtemberg and Bavaria under command of the King of Prussia in case of war, gives Prussia an advantage which France is not willing to concede, unless she is allowed to take as a counterpoise to this increase of power, the Provinces of the Rhine This is a view of the case from the French standpoint, and from such a view France evidently persuades herself that she is taking up arms for her own safety, and perhaps for her preservation. The contest over the Spanish crown is simply an incident of the general controversy. It amounts to little in itself and is important only from its connection with it affairs

Again, it was stipulated by the treaty of Prague that the northern district of Schleswig might by a popular vote go to Denmark. But Prussia has not yet permitted this stipulation to be carried out, and in this also, it is alleged by France that she has violated the treaty.

The course by which Prussia has gained the ascendant in Germany has been a very sagacious and adroit one. There has long been a strong wish in Germany for unity The jealousy of the cabinet of Berlin of Austrian influence and their desire to obtain a preponderating sovereignty for Prussia led them to take advantage of this wish for German unity and to effect an arrangement which has contributed powerfully to build up the power of Prussia and to increase the prosperity of the North German States A League was established under the name of Zoll-Verein (toll-Union), which came into full operation in 1834. Its object was to establish perfect freedom of commercial intercourse between the States belonging to it, and to levy so high a tariff on all imports as would effectually exclude the competition of foreign industry The effects of this arrangement have been very great upon the material prosperity of the German people, and the influence of Prussia has been vastly augmented by it The fidelity of the smaller States to Prussia has been secured by her tact in making their prosperity and their revenues dependent on the permanence of the union.

But further progress toward the union of Germany, with that union headed by Prussia, France deems dangerous to her own peace and safety. Especially when there is added to this the election of a King for Spain who would be attached to Prussian and German interests, does France consider herself in a perilous position,—that is, if she is to maintain her pretensions as the leading nation of Europe. She wants the power of Germany divided; not united, with that of Spain brought into an alliance with it.

Such are some of the complications at the bottom of the present war in Europe. Judged from one standpoint France has no just cause for war If the people of Germany wish for unity, and if the people of Spain want a German prince for King who should interfere? But judged from another standpoint, France is not without a pretext and even a cause for war, inasmuch as it has long been an accepted maxim in Europe that an equilibrium of political power must be maintained

The Basis of Wealth

The Chicago Republican of the 8th July has an article on Oregon as compared with California and Nevada, which is quite flattering to our State. It shows that Oregon is building on a sure foundation of substantial resources, while her neighboring States have relied too much on their production of the precious metals "The history of all gold mining communities, says the Republican "is uniform. They grow poor on the metals taken from the soil. It is drained away to enrich communities which do not dig it, and in exchange for those necessary supplies, which are in themselves an evidence of something richer than gold to the States that produce them With all its mines of precious metals the only present reliable source of wealth in California is its agriculture and the development of one good farm is of more importance to the State than a dozen gold mines The neglect of this source of wealth and the fever of speculation in mining stocks have dwarfed the resources of the country, and nearly every business interest is languishing. So much for California These observations will recall the fact that must be apparent to all among us that Oregon owes everything she has gained so far to the employment of her people in permanent occupations, and little or nothing to the gold fields that surround her No people can become prosperous by digging gold In the development of other resources in the creation of productive wealth they lay the foundation of sure and permanent prosperity It is on this basis that the Chicago paper argues that the prospects for Oregon for the future are full of encouragement We have the materials here to be developed in boundless wealth There is more wealth in agriculture than in all the gold fields, and more in a bed of iron ore on one of our rivers than in all the quartz lodes of our eastern counties

Correspondence between Jeff Davis and Gen. Jo Johnston, which took place in 1861 and has just been published shows that Davis was not responsible for the failure of the rebels to take Washington immediately after the first battle of Bull Run He statement has often been made that Davis prevented the advance but the letters of Johnston fully show that he (Johnston himself) ordered his troops to stop at the Inn of Fairfax Court House It is agreed by Johnston that it never was feasible to pass that line

We wonder what the Agricultural Bureau at Washington obtain information relative to the Oregon crop? In the published report of the Bureau for July the present crop in all states is estimated at four per cent below the average The fact is there never was so large a crop in Oregon as this one now being harvested nor was the quality of the grain ever better Instead of being four per cent below average the crop is fully twenty per cent, greater than ever before produced in the State

General Grant and the Republican Party

[From the New York Herald July]

There are two or three Republican journals of this city and here and there a lame duck among the party journals of the country East and West, which agree at least upon one thing, viz That General Grant in his appointments and in his policy has fallen short of their expectations This to be sure is a matter of very little consequence, but still it is worth a passing notice Each of these sore heads puffed up with self conceit is grievously outraged that the administration has not defined this one that one or the other at his own estimate Here for instance, is a perfect monomaniac on free trade, who if he could have his way, would abolish all our custom houses and substitute a direct tax on home manufactures from which to supply the revenue now drawn from foreign goods and because General Grant has not made this policy his platform of course he and administration is pronounced by this fractional monomaniac a lamentable failure Again here is a pretentious half and half concern which considers General Grant as falling into the decline of Andy Johnson in failing to make said half and half organ the chief dispenser of the spoils for his particular benefit And here is a rebellious fellow who has failed to get a Custom House and therefore other disappointed patriots in the matter of a fat Post Office, or Consulate, or Territorial Governorship, or Indian agency or something that would pay and they are all badly and sadly disappointed in General Grant There are some straggling members of Congress of the same way of thinking but what does all this amount to?

It is the old story that the offices have given out before a third of the applicants have been supplied, and that some of the vainest and impudent of the beggars are resolved upon revenge. We have had the same complaints the same wranglings and the same sort of bolters in the party camp under every administration since there have been any spoils to divide worth fighting for The New York Custom House has given more trouble to every President, from Jackson down, than all the fighting Indians in the United States, and so it will be, we suppose, for generations to come. No matter who is made Collector there is sure to be a fight over him among the squabbling cliques of office-beggars, and the party is threatened with destruction by Tom, Dick and Harry if their demands, respectively are not satisfied.

The administration of General Grant however, has higher duties to perform than the feeding of these blustering office-beggars of the following of self-conceited policy makers of one fanatical idea or a dozen impracticable notions In maintaining peace in restoring law and order throughout the country, in reestablishing public confidence in the national credit and currency and general prosperity in our business affairs in reducing expenses and taxes, and in paying off the national debt, General Grant is doing very well Let him persevere in this good work, and whatever may be the growlings or howlings of disappointed soreheads, his administration will be sustained by the country

The damage suit of Henry L Caples vs the C P R R Co has recently been decided in the District Court at Elko The plaintiff sued for $100,000, for damages sustained by a railroad accident near Tonno, March 29th, 1870 The complaint alleged that the car in which plaintiff took passage was thrown from the track by the carelessness and negligence of defendant s agents and employees, and was crushed by other cars of the train, plaintiff thereby sustaining a fracture of the skull and other injuries After exhaustive arguments by counsel on both sides, the jury awarded Caples $8,000 damages

The Oakland Transcript, of the 12th inst, says As the Eastern train left Seventh street this morning, a laughable incident occurred, seeing nobody was hurt A Chinaman thought he was on the local train till after the cars had got under pretty good headway, and the yellow son rushed frantically to the platform and sprang off He flew into the air, his limbs kicking in all directions, and turning completely over, landed with a thud, square on his back All the witnesses thought the man was killed as he lay perfectly motionless for a moment or so At last a bystander kicked him gently in the side The Chinaman shortly rose, opened his eyes rubbed them looked with astonishment at the crowd then at the spot where he fell and then coolly walked off as if nothing had happened

The Virginia (Nev) Enterprise observes that all who have attempted to swim in the waters of Lake Tahoe must have been startled at their strange lack of buoyancy Good swimmers launch forth into the lake with the greatest confidence in their skill, and at once found themselves floundering and only able to keep afloat by the most strenuous exertions Going into Lake Tahoe after swimming in the generality of lakes—the lakes and streams of the valleys as like attempt to swim in fresh water after having learned the art in salt water or even more trying The bodies of persons drowned in the lake are never seen after they have once sunk Of the five white persons drowned in the lake not a single body has ever been recovered or even seen The bones of all are still in the lake How many Indians may have been lost in its waters in times past no one knows Pine logs float in the lake but a very short time then sink never again to rise In places far down through the crystal fluid are to be seen resting upon the bottom great quantities of slabs logs and lumber

In a recent speech in Congress Mr Dawes referred to the stability in the tariff which will be acquired by extending manufactures through the country and said "Within the last five years more woolen factories have sprung up in the West than existed in all the East to do exist there at this day, and the only hope of hastening manufactures is in the fact that in the West woolen manufacturing is springing up, and that in the South they are to carry the machine close to the cotton fields and manufacture the cotton close to where they raise it. Under this state of things, we shall understand what our nation is capable of being—a great producing and a great manufacturing nation at one and the same time"
